Caroline Midgley

Director of Biofuels and Oleochemicals - Agri-Business

With over 25 years of experience in research and analysis of global markets, Caroline has led key projects in the agribusiness sector, with a particular focus on the sugar, biofuels, and oleochemicals markets. Her career began as a researcher at EDF Man and LMC International, where she delved into the dynamics of the sugar market.

Subsequently, she served for 24 years as Director of Research in biofuels and oleochemicals, consolidating her expertise in the strategic analysis of raw materials. Currently, she is Director at GlobalData, where she leads consulting initiatives for the agribusiness sector, combining her technical and market vision to advise companies and governments in making informed decisions.
